Directors To Gather On Friday For The Report

Appointment of a committee looking toward the reorganization of the chamber of commerce here was the principal accomplishment of the Tuesday night meeting held at the chamber of commerce auditorium. Lyde Hendrix, president of the body, presided. A number of optimistic talks were made by representative citizens.

Believing that there are industries and manufacturers who desire to locate within the radius of the Twin cities the civic organization called citizens to attend a meeting Tuesday night with the result that the body will probably again function as an aid to the cities and to the outside interests who are watching the progress of Valley cities with the view to probable location.

A committee, composed of J. W. Clopton as chairman, T. A. Bowles and John W. Knight, was appointed to look over the local situation and report their findings and recommendations to the directors of the organization on Friday night 7:30 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. The organization will take up unfinished business. It is expected that vacancies will be filled.

The last night's meeting grew out of several inquiries by manufacturers who wish to understand the local situation writing to the chamber of commerce leaders for the information. The leaders immediately called the meeting, realizing that it was to be best interests of the communities that the manufacturers be given every attention necessary in the hope that they might definitely determine upon Albany-Decatur and the surrounding section as a permanent site for industrial plants.

Interesting and optimistic talks were made at the gathering by J. W. Clopton, John Patterson, T. A. Bowles, John W. Knight and W. W. Rahm. Each speaker believed that the organization should be supported and the towns offer all encouragement possible to outside interests. Several expressed the need for immediate action and it is believed generally that the Friday night meeting will see the beginning of a concrete organization giving time and service to the manufacturing interests that wish to move their plants into the location possessing so many raw materials.

GOVERNOR PINCHOT IS WARM ADVOCATE
GIANT POWER PLAN

Pennsylvania Executive Writes Letter To Congressman

HE OPPOSES THE
"SUPER POWER"

Urge That The Public
Ride Elephant Of Power Monopoly

Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, has written a letter to Congressman Edward B. Almon, of the Eighth congressional district, a copy of which was sent to The Daily, advocating the "Giant Power" plan.

Governor Pinchot points out that the plan is directly opposed to what he calls the "Super Power" plan, in that under his plan there would be a pooling of power resources, under direct control of the people whereas "Super Power" is the pooling of power resources by private companies.

"Giant Power," Mr. Pinchot contends, can be used to prevent the "discrimination" against small users of power in favor of the larger consumers.

His letter follows:

"July 16, 1925.
Hon. Edward B. Almon,
Tuscumbia, Alabama.
My dear Mr. Almon:

"I am taking the liberty of sending you a copy of the Giant Power Report of Pennsylvania in the hope that it may be of use to you in the widespread consideration of Giant Power which is coming.

"Giant Power is a plan for supplying electric current for every purpose to the people of America in greater abundance and at cheaper rates than ever before. It includes the production of electricity in enormous quantities, partly from water powers but chiefly at huge coal burning central power stations near the mouths of mines; the pouring of that electricity as it were into a great pool of power for the service of all; and the saving of the valuable by-products of coal burned for power. It aims to assist and hasten the rapid expansion of electric service.

"The Giant Power plan undertakes to prevent the nation-wide electric monopoly now almost formed from acquiring industrial, commercial, financial, and political control of this nation. It does not aim at public ownership, but demands that in all plans for electric development the public interest shall receive first consideration. Through effective public regulation it proposes to break down and put an end to the present unfair discrimination in rates in favor of a few great users of electricity and against moderate and small users through which the latter are made to pay extortionate charges.

"Super-power is the name chosen by the electric magnates for their own set up of a nation-wide electric monopoly. Giant Power and super-power are as different as a tame elephant and a wild one. One is the friend and fellow worker of man, the other, at large and uncontrolled, may be a dangerous enemy. The place for the public is on the neck of the elephant, guiding its movements, not on the ground helpless under its knees.

"Giant Power means regulation by the people of the coming electric monopoly. Super-power means control of the people by the monopoly. The principal object of super-power is profit for the companies—not benefit for the public and it is on the way to being realized with a rapidity which it's difficult to understand. If we are to have Giant Power instead of super-power—development in the interest of all instead of development in the interest of a few—the time in which to make sure of it is very short.

Sincerely yours,
GIFFORD PINCHOT,
Governor of Pennsylvania."

JULIUS DAILEY ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

The Defendant Faces
Charge Slaying
Joe Eaton

Following the sensational close of Davis trial Tuesday afternoon the Circuit Court resumed the criminal docket early today when Julius Dailey negro faced a charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Joe Eaton, negro. The shooting occurred Tuesday morning June 16 near 4:30 o'clock near the intersection of Walnut and McCartney streets.

W. W. Callahan and T. C. Almon are handling the case for the state while S. A. Lynn is playing a lone hand in the effort to produce evidence showing that Dailey killed Eaton in self defense.

The slaying of the negro followed the killing of Robert Howell by only a few hours, making the third killing in the cities within a few days period.

At the time of the Eaton killing it was said that Dailey gave himself up to authorities at the Decatur city hall and later being transferred to the county jail. Dailey was later granted bond.

The case is expected to go to the jury today.

The following jurors were empaneled in the case: Edgar Grantland, Floyd Halbrooks, Albert W. Lemley, Ollie Martin, Walter S. Poole, Lexie Lile, Berry Woodall, Wiley Stephenson, Joe F. Walk, Leon Chunn, John Howell and Morgan Wray.

Miss Kate Driskill, aged 53 years, died at 4:15 o'clock this morning, following a short illness and an operation for appendicitis. The body was conveyed to the Priest mortuary and will be shipped to Jacksonville, Ala., Thursday morning, funeral services being held in that city Thursday afternoon.

Miss Driskill is survived by two brothers, W. W. Driskill, of Chattanooga and W. H. Driskill, of Decatur, with whom the deceased had made her home more than a year, during which time she had endeared herself to many friends in the Twin Cities. Her sudden death this morning was a shock to many Twin City residents.

Anti-Rabic Doses
Are Ordered For Mad Cat Victim

Little Vera Skininher must undergo the anti-rabic treatment following an attack upon her by a mad cat Monday afternoon at the home of her parents near Hillsboro. The head of the animal was sent to the Tennessee Valley laboratory and examination showed "positive."

According to information given today the child was standing in the doorway of her home and called to the cat, which was a stray. The cat jumped upon the child scratching and biting her. The cat then ran to the rear of the house and suffered fit. The animal was killed and the head sent here. The treatment for the prevention of rabies has been ordered.

Telegrams Are Sent
Urging Bee Line
Tourist Use

With the meeting today at Nashville, Tenn., of various automobile associations in the hope of stressing the use of the Bee Line highway for tourists the cities today sent telegrams to the heads of the associations emphasizing the advantages of the Bee Line route. Wires also told of the building of the bridge at this point.

The meeting has been called at Nashville in the hope that a 27-mile stretch in Kentucky will be improved and made more practicable for tourists use.

LeRoy Hill, executive secretary of the Alabama Motorists Association, is asking for a co-operative effort from cities along the route as an encouragement to tourist trade. Mr. Hill estimates that fully 50,000 tourists will use the route during the winter months if the proper attention is paid to the condition of the highway.

In a letter he stated to local men that it has been estimated that the average tourist spent as much as $4 in the cities in which they stopped. He declared the figure will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars and is worth the consideration of any city.

HEARING ON WATER
RATES HERE RE-SET FOR A DAY EARLIER

Officials Are Notified
Today Of Decision
By Commission

CITIES' REQUEST IS ACCEDED TO

Attorneys Preparing to Combat Plea Of Company

Officials of Albany and Decatur today were notified that the Alabama public service commission has acceded to the wishes of the city attorneys of the municipalities, and has moved up the date of the hearing on the petition of the Alabama Water company for permission to increase its rate schedule in the Twin Cities.

Formal notice was received here today from the commission that the date of the hearing on the petition, originally set for July 29, has been changed to Tuesday, July 28. The hearing will be held at the Decatur city hall.

City Attorney Callahan of Decatur and City Attorney Chenault, of Albany, are engaged in the task of preparing the defense of the municipalities against the petition of the water company.

An interesting feature of the hearing will be the fact that it will be held in spite of a restraining order from the federal court, restraining the commission and the attorney general of Alabama from interfering with the increase in rates in the two cities.

Speculation was being indulged in here in regard to the possible accomplishments of the hearing. Many took the position that the commission could conduct the hearing, hear what evidence was submitted, but would not render any decision until such time as the federal court passes upon the restraining order, either dissolving such order or making it permanent.

NEAL MAY TAKE SCOPES CASE TO FEDERAL COURT IN KNOXVILLE

Petition Prepared As Attorneys Get Ready To Leave Little Tennessee City

(Associated Press)
DAYTON, Tenn., July 22—Close of the "Scopes case" brought only extra work for John R. Neal, chief counsel for the defense.

His was the task of preparing the record of the conviction for submission to the supreme court. As he began his work today he estimated that one week would be required in getting the document ready.

With Scopes convicted and sentenced to pay the fine of $100 the scene shifted from Dayton to Knoxville, where the supreme court hears cases from east Tennessee in September.

The Tennessee supreme court meets in Knoxville, Nashville and Jackson and failure to be heard on the "evolution issue" in September would result in a delay of one year.

Lawers yesterday suggested a bare possibility that the case might have to go to an appellate court, before reaching the supreme court under an act of the last legislature, expanding the power of the court of appeals to hear certain cases formerly considered by the supreme court.

It was considered unlikely, however that the Scopes case would be sidetracked before reaching the state's highest tribunal.

In connection with the perfection of the appeal it was pointed out that a new line up of lawyers may be found when the case is heard in Knoxville. John R. Neal as senior counsel, was expected to represent the defense, but his associate may not be those who appeared in the trial court.

Bainbridge Colby former secretary of state, and active figure in the case before the trial at Dayton, was not present here but his associates pointed out that he had withdrawn and was a member of defense counsel.

Asked if Mr. Colby would make an argument before the supreme court, Dr. Neal said that while he was not prepared to announce who would speak for the defense at Knoxville, Mr. Colby still was in the case.

Frank Thompson, attorney general of Tennessee will, by virtue of his office, represent the state in the case.

A possibility was indicated that effort may be made to have the evolution issue concurrently in state and federal courts. A petition from Robert E. Wilson, Rhea Springs taxpayer, is available for presentation to a federal court, setting forth the contention that the anti-evolution statute deprives him of the right to properly educate his children in the public schools, in violation of the provisions of the constitution of the United States.

John R. Neal has announced that he will present this petition to Judge Hicks, United States district court, at Knoxville when a favorable opportunity offers.

Governor Austin Peay and Attorney General Frank Thompson are made defendants in this action and five days notice must be given them before this can be heard.

Attorneys in the Scopes case were leaving today. Dudley Field Malone and Arthur G. Hays returned to New York and Attorney General Stewart went to his home in Winchester yesterday as did Judge Raulston.

ALLISON NOT COMING

Reports to the effect that John Allison, former Albany city traffic officer is to return here to resume duties as a traffic officer were declared to day to be unfounded. Allison recently resigned his position at Huntsville and the impression was general that he was to accept a position here.

MANY MONTGOMERY VISITORS OVERLOOK POINTS OF INTEREST

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 22.—People who come to Montgomery to visit from other parts of the state often overlook many interesting sights that are to be seen here. As "cradle of the Confederacy" the city is rich in historical lore and famous "spots." Of course the visitor generally takes in the Capitol before leaving the city, but many fail to go up in the dome and view the city. An interesting experience and a beautiful sight await those who have yet to "go up."

The customary procedure in going up in the dome is to ask permission to make the trip from one of the former Confederate soldier guards that are on duty on the first floor. He will then assign a negro, one of the many that will be somewhere in the vicinity, to act as escort.

The sightseer is due a thrill at this juncture if it is but realized that the escort is a convict that is officially known as a trusty. The chances are that he is a murderer and is serving a life term or at least a long span of years. Nobody seems particularly worried about having them about but one never feels quite at ease at first. Of course, it may be that the escort assigned to a party is nothing but a highwayman, but the general impression is that murderers predominate among the trustees.

The feeling of uncertainty that has been born in the sightseer's mind on learning that the escort is a convict is heightened when the door to the dome is opened and a glimpse of the stairs that lead up to the top of the opal are sighted. Steep steps that seem to ascend at an angle of nearly 75 degrees provide the means of ascension. The steps wind about in a leisurely curve and encircle the sides of the dome in a manner reminiscent of a python's coil about its prey.

The sightseer generally thinks about the embattled castles of history in which "dungeon keeps" were highly popular at the first sight of the steps and gets that chilly feeling that would only be natural on being led down the steps to such a dungeon.

But when the top of the stairs is reached and the blue sky is over head and the sun shining brightly all of the fears or near fears that have been experienced coming up are gone and the beauty of the panorama that lies about is more than enough to compensate for the spooky feelings felt coming up. Then, a good look at the trusty will convince the party that there is really nothing to fear, for it will be found that the negro is intelligent looking and very very respectful. They all seem especially eager to please and point out all of the sights with which they are familiar.

The first thing that strikes the attention of the sightseer is a rather large bell that is visible on the roof right below the railing of the platform around the dome. It is strangely like the liberty bell and yet it is different. It might be classified as a modernized replica of the famous clario. A query to the escort will reveal that the bell is a part of the clock which faces down Dexter avenue. When the bell is pointed out, the trusty will chuckle delightedly and immediately tell about the "white feller that put that clock up there and when it broke down, couldn't fix it." It seems that the clock was placed on the roof many years ago and has broken down twice since. It has been repaired once, but since then has gone on a strike that seems to be permanent.

A glance around the city will show that the dome is on a level with, or slightly above the roofs of the tallest buildings in the business district, and parallel with the statue to the soldiers of the Confederacy at the side of the Capitol building. The woman on the statue is holding a flag which is just about even with the dome platform.

The battery of searchlights that illuminate the dome at night is plainly visible from the platform, while oval is detracted when one learns how the light is created. Lights from all directions point on the dome.

Over in the distance, the Alabama river sweeps on and provides a spectacle of rare beauty as it twists around until it is no longer visible. The expanse of water is especially attractive when the sun is shining on it at the right angle.

The odd roofs of the days of the Civil War poke up here and there through the trees and serve as reminders of the glorious past of the quaint old city that lies below. A flash of long white columns through openings in the leaves heightens this impression.

Over on a hill to the rear of the Capitol, a small cemetery shows. The gleaming white headstones stand out from a background of green shrubbery, and for a fleeting instant the old creepy feeling of the stairs comes back.

Directly below the platform, Dexter avenue leads into the heart of the downtown section. It is split with parks, one on each side of the avenue and a driveway in the middle.

After all the sights have been exhausted, it is interesting to have a little chat with the trusty escort. He will tell you about why he is serving the state as a convict; his eyes fixed on a spot on the horizon.

Just the other day a party was escorted into the dome by Albert Grifien, one of the fixtures at the Capitol. Inevitable questions followed and the questioner was rather astonished to learn that Albert is serving a 25 year sentence for the killing of another negro in Talladega county 14 years ago. The questioner had not known that the negro was even a convict and had been spared the mixed feelings spoken of previously.

Albert will tell you, if you ask him about it, that sometimes "such things have to happen and it is much better to have people say that he killed a man, than to have them say a man killed him." Albert is patently sorry for his deed, but his philosophy is that he had rather lose 25 years of his life than all of it, especially when the choice was thrown up to him.

By the time that you have finished talking with the trusty, he will have probably won your sympathy, and you will be ready to go down stairs with the escort preceding you. When you get to the bottom of the steps, if you want to observe real gratitude, suppose you give the negro a small coin. You will see gratitude then, for such coins mean tobacco and other small luxuries that are not common to the convicts who spend their lives at the Capitol and live from one breath-taking climb to another.

Prudence's Daughter

By Ethel Hueston

The delightful series of novels with which Ethel Hueston introduced her now famous character, Prudence, began with "Prudence of the Parsonage." This was followed by "Prudence Says So" and "Prudence's Sisters." You may recall that in the second book a daughter was born—christened Fairy Geraldine—a veritable little fairy in the home. By the process of time Fairy Geraldine is now grown up, but she has discarded the name, Fairy, and Geraldine has been shortened to Jerry, so what more natural than that we should have a new novel, "Prudence's Daughter?" It is the latest in the series, complete in itself and written in the same graceful style and abounding in the same delicious humor. You will enjoy it even if you have not read the others.

Tip For Beginners.

Solve this puzzle by comparing the synonyms listed in the "Horizontal" and "Vertical" columns with the number of spaces extending crosswise or downward on the diagram, as the case may be. If a word occurs to you meaning substantially the same as the synonym and the correct number of letters to fit in the spaces between its number and the first shaded stop following, write it in lightly. Work away the small words, the "easy" words, first, and they will give you plenty of clues to the difficult ones.

PROTECTION IS PAID FOR SAYS WITNESS

Prosecution Continues Drive In The Trial Of Alleged Rum Ring

(Associated Press)
MOBILE, Ala., July 22.—Testimony given by Lewis Williams, of Washington County, that he paid for protection to engage in the liquor business was corroborated by N. S. Lane, employed by Williams this morning when he was called as a government witness in the Washington County liquor ring case.

Lane testified that he took $25 from Williams, who was sick, to J. S. Powell, of Chatom. He also testified that Williams told him if Sheriff Onderdonk or Deputy Armstrong ever came to his place, while he was away, for liquor, to let them have it and make no charge.

He said that Williams said it was all right to give the liquor to the two county officers. Lane also testified that he had seen Onderdonk, Williams and others bringing together Onderdonk, Armstrong, J. S. and J. W. Powell, A. E. Cartman, Grady Hurst Oliver Boykin and Williams are the defendants in the case. They are charged with conspiring to violate the national prohibition law.

J. L. Daugherty of McIntosh, was another witness in the case that morning. He testified that he made and sold liquor to Williams and that he paid Williams $285 to get protection in the liquor business. He said that Williams told him, after a time, that the money went to Powell and that Williams said Sheriff Onderdonk knew nothing about the matter.

He testified that he was not raided by the county officers, but was arrested by the state and federal men. The case was started in the court yesterday and is expected to take up the remainder of the week.

About 75 witnesses have been summoned by the government in the case and it is understood the defendants will call a number.

Court Fight Is Started To Stop Salaries Of Several Teachers

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 22.—Treasury officials were ordered by a local court today to show cause why salaries of school officers here should not be withheld, because of the teaching of scientific doctrines, alleged to reflect on the Bible.

Loren H. Wittner, an employee of the internal revenue bureau and once a candidate for congress in Illinois, precipitated the issue, charging that the teachings in the school violated a provision of the District of Columbia appropriation bill which stipulated no funds had been expended for salaries of those teaching "disrespect for the Holy Bible."

After going into great detail as to the contents of approved textbooks, including G. W. Hunter's biology, which was cited in the Dayton trial, and the teaching of chemistry, biology, astronomy, and other scientific studies, Wittner sets forth that these, taken literally, conflicted with scriptural texts which he quoted.

It is sought to stop the pay of Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools in Washington and W. P. Hay, head of the department of biology and chemistry. A list of examples is given by Whittner as instances in which Hay taught and Ballou permitted him to teach things described as conflicting directly with statements made in the Bible.

THREATENS STRIKE ALL COAL MINERS

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The labor department's concern over the general coal situation was manifestly increased today by receipt of a telegram from Van A. Bittner, of the United States Workers of America, threatening a nation-wide suspension of work in the bituminous coal fields, unless, agreements by coal operators in the northern West Virginia coal fields.

The telegram, which was addressed to Secretary Davis, was brought to the attention of Hugh L. Kerwin, director of conciliation, because of the absence of Secretary Davis, who is in Europe. It also was addressed to Secretary Hoover, who is in California.

Though Mr. Kerwin persistently declined to divulge the contents of the telegrams, some officials were frankly worried over the new situation created by it. Their apprehension was increased in the light of recent expressions of Secretary Davis that the labor department is powerless to act in such a crisis, the only aid it can possibly offer being a tender of the facilities of its conciliation service for arbitration of the dispute.

12 Years Ago From The Daily of TODAY July 22, 1913

City Clerk Henry Hartung announced this morning that many had not paid street taxes. Better pay now and save $1.60.

Miss Elizabeth Transue has returned from a visit to Knoxville and other points.

Jim Johnson is spending the week at Holmes Gap with his sister, Miss Fannie, who is spending the summer there.

W. T. Seamons and family expect to move into their new home on Johnston street next week.

Mrs. J. W. Crow is ill at her home on Sixth Avenue South.

Won't you have some more Evolution?

Mobile, apparently, did not desire that any man suffer from thirst.

The monthly meeting of the board of pardons was held Monday in Montgomery. More than 70 applications for pardons or paroles were received. Being in jail is an unpleasant way to spend a vacation.

The Alabama Water company has a splendid opportunity for expansion of service in North Alabama. Were you in the court room during the Davis trial?

What could be sweeter than being on the front page of every newspaper in the United States on the same day, in the opinion of W. J. Bryan. He has won a great victory and now what will he do to stay before the public?

Zane Grey, the noted novelist, has just announced that he has caught a 758-pound Tuna and he has the picture to verify his statement. All fishermen should profit after the example set by Mr. Grey.

The rain has come to the agricultural sections, the crops have been greatly benefited. Now the cry will go up against mud roads. Why not vote a road bond issue and end the controversy?

It is a good thing the democratic convention was over before the evolution discussion became so heated. The democratic delegates probably would have become permanent residents of New York, if evolution had been added to the other subjects of debate.

The political campaign for the senate is open, it seems, for the periodical visits of The Birmingham Advance have started. With Senator Underwood out of the running, one wonders who will receive the full benefit of the Advance's caustic comments.

The government may be unwilling to permit Henry Ford to take over Muscle Shoals, but is perfectly willing to sell him scrapped ships. The point of the story is that most of the ships are located in northern and eastern waters.

$100 COURT COSTS AFTER ALL THE DAYTON TURMOIL

Strange that after all the furor and turmoil caused by the Dayton publicity affair, when John T. Scopes declared a certain allegiance to the teachings of Darwin, that the trial should culminate with a $100 fine. All the expense, all the rot, all the nonsense, and all for obtaining a $100 fine against a bespeckled school teacher who chances to believe a little differently from the Fundamentals.

Nashville now becomes the scene of hostilities with the promises of columns of newspaper publicity. We disagree that the advertising has been nonsensical with nothing proven, unless the gigantic hot air capacity of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Darrow.

ANOTHER CITY SEES THE NEED OF CIVIC DEVELOPMENT ON THE ROAD AHEAD

Just a few days ago The Daily carried an article calling the attention of the citizens to the need for civic development along with the industrial expansion that we are now enjoying. At that time we spoke of the needs for the cities to get busy in eliminating the weeds from near the city pavements, the advantages of keeping railway stations looking good and of the additional planting of trees within the corporate limits.

Now it is to be seen from the Opelika News that that city too has some idea along the same line. The chamber of commerce of that city has undertaken to stress the needs for putting on a new coat in the following article:

"It takes more than industrial plants to build cities. Other growing cities make special features of the things which makes them pleasant for living. Florence, Ala., is called 'The City Beautiful.' Tulsa, Oklahoma, advertises that it is 'America's Cleanest City.' Lakeland, Florida, 'The City of Heart's Desire.' St. Louis calls herself the 'Home City' and a beautiful booklet is sent out telling of its residential sections, its schools, its churches its zoos and parks, its beautiful gardens, art museum, its libraries and places of recreation.

"Opelika can profit by studying the other cities and making improvements. With the splendid transportation service from the railroads and the highways entering the city, it is easy to reach. We have nice residential sections, beautiful churches, a good school system and near one of the greatest colleges in the South. Our city swimming pool and lakes around us furnish places for recreation. Even our baseball games are an asset in furnishing amusement during the summer months.

"We need more parks and playgrounds. We need a public library. More money is needed to enlarge and improve our schools. Our city can be made more attractive by using a little paint and tearing down some old buildings which are eyesores. By a little work and co-operation we can make our little city very attractive to people hunting homes."

"Now we believe that the slogan adds to the attractiveness of the city that is offering a home to folks from the outside that are seeking to find new homes, but what we want, more than the pretty slogans, is the action. We think a great deal of the co-operation, but we likewise want the action in that case.

"You know of many cities that are known for their attractive slogans and after arriving you have found that the slogan was a misfit. For instance, think of Chicago, 'The windy city,' Pittsburgh, 'The smoky city,' these slogans are not very attractive to home builders, but the cities have been built through an effort, thorough activity of the citizens.

"A clean town, a neat town, an attractive town with trees, well kept parkways, flowers, bright buildings, is about the best advertisement that can be offered to the outside world.

MAIL ORDER BUSINESS CANNOT SHOW ANY ADVANTAGE FOR COMMUNITIES

Though the fight against the mail order house has been carried into every section of the nation where there are towns and cities with any degree of public pride and progressive spirit, the pain still remains. The cure cannot be affected through the talks appearing in newspapers, chamber of commerce journals or other civic organs—the cure has to come from the people themselves.

Anniston, our neighboring city, is seemingly having the same difficulty which we have been suffering from for the years in the past and the Star places an interesting argument in favor of trading with the home town merchant in the Monday issue of that good publication.

The Star looks at the matter from this viewpoint:

"Perhaps the greatest handicap to successful retail merchandising in any community is the tendency of people to buy from mail order houses. The lure of the big, attractively illustrated catalog appears difficult to resist. People who look carefully at every article they buy from the home merchant will order freely from the catalog, having no assurance that they are getting what they wish, and with nothing to guide them except the picture in the book and the descriptive matter that accompanies the picture.

"For the home merchant, this mail order business is unfair competition. It forces the home merchant to meet conditions that are not real. He must show goods and values to compete with firms that show nothing and from whom buyers take the chance of buying 'sight unseen.' The fact that very often the mail order purchases are not satisfactory and have to be returned for other articles or to get the money back, does not seem to deter many from buying through the catalogs.

"A very complete illustration of what the mail order houses do and do not do is given by 'The Prairie Lumberman' in 'The Ten Commandments' are:

1. You shall sell your farm produce for cash, where you can, for we buy nothing from you.

2. You shall believe in us, and best because we do not know you personally.

3. You shall send your money to us in advance, so we can buy the goods from the factory with your money; you may have to wait a few weeks, but that is our business method.

4. You shall get help from your nearest city or village to build good roads, so you may easily haul our goods from the depot, but do not ask help from us—we don't help to build good roads.

5. You may buy church bells and altar utensils from us, and send the money in advance—that's our rule.

6. You shall get all the help you can from the business men in your neighborhood; although we may have more profit from you than they have, it is against our rules to give to your churches.

7. You shall convert neighbors also to your faith in us, for we have room for more money.

8. You shall look at the pretty pictures in our catalog as often as you can, so as to strengthen your desire for things you do not need, but which you may order with other goods to save freight. Send us all your ready cash so that you may not have any left to buy necessities from your home dealers.

9. You shall believe in us rather than your home business men, for we want your trade. We get to be millionaires on your support. Don't be blinded.

10. You shall call on the business people in your own vicinity for help and credit if you meet with hard luck or sickness. It's your money we want; we don't know you unless your orders are accompanied by cash.

"The money sent out of a town or community, whether to mail order houses or to department stores in large cities that have mail order departments, never comes back to the community. It is lost forever as a circulating medium in that town or community. On the other hand the money spent with the home merchant with few exceptions, is kept in circulation in the town or community, helps to keep the minister's salary going, relieves want through charity, goes for other goods sold by other merchants in the town, or in clerk hire to people who spend it for living expenses again."

The whole story is one of truth. There is not a word that should be left unsaid in the effort to enlighten the people and make them realize that they are injuring their own chances for prosperity when they send their money to the four corners of the earth.

Yes, they get the product that they buy at a lower price figure, they get good delivery service, but somehow they are very closemouthed about the material and where it was bought. They do not wish to come into the open before their home town merchants, they fear that the merchant will turn them down on some proposition that they wish to see carried to a successful end. It is unfair to the home town merchant to ask him to contribute to drives, funds, charities, bazaars, unless the merchant is supported by the individual in his turn. The entire matter requires a practice of reciprocity in trade.

"It takes more than industrial plants to build cities. Other growing cities make special features of the things which makes them pleasant for living. Florence, Ala., is called 'The City Beautiful.' Tulsa, Oklahoma, advertises that it is 'America's Cleanest City.' Lakeland, Florida, 'The City of Heart's Desire.' HOW TO CARE FOR YOUR FEET IN SUMMER

Imprisoned Muscles May Cause You Pain But There Is a Way to Escape This and Enjoy Long Walks.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

In summertime the feet hurt if they ever do. The heat of the shoes and of the sidewalks produce a combination which makes for discomfort if not for actual pain.

Civilized man has not treated his feet very well.

It has not occurred to him to imprison his hands, but he certainly placed his feet in solitary confinement.

The foot is very complicated in its muscular arrangement. Twelve leg muscles reach down to the foot and attach themselves to many bones. Thus each foot has twenty muscles of its own.

So far as muscles, bones and all the mechanical arrangements are concerned, the foot and toes are capable of doing everything the head and fingers can do. Perhaps you have seen, as I have, persons who have lost their hands and have educated their feet to perform all the usual manual arts. Using a knife and fork and even playing a piano, or operating a typewriter, are within the power of these handless individuals.

But we have chosen to encase the foot in a hard and unyielding shoe, preventing all, except the most limited movements. What is worse, we are prone to divert the foot from its normal position by elevating the heel and compressing the toes. High heels and pointed toes make of the shoe a torturing instrument and disturb the position of the body by changing its foundation, the feet.

We hear much these days about falling arches. This is a defect due in most instances to walking too early in life, or to wrongly fitting shoes.

It is a mistake to hurry the child about learning to walk. He should not walk until the little bones have grown firm and the foot muscles have gained sufficient strength.

Even though your neighbor's child, younger than yours, can walk and run, don't worry about the slowness of yours. Give the baby time to develop his bones and muscles.

If shoes are big enough for the feet and properly made, it will make a lot of difference with his foot comfort and future.

Walking is one of the best forms of exercise. It should be practiced by everybody, but it cannot be enjoyed unless the shoes fit the feet.

It is impossible to make the feet fit the shoes and, unfortunately, that effort is a common one. Trouble attributed to "fallen arches" is usually nothing more than trouble due to wrongly fitting shoes.

In the Army the shoes are selected as to length and width by measuring the foot when the soldier is standing and carrying the maximum marching weight of materials. Naturally, the foot is crowded forward and broadened by this procedure.

MISS R. S. Q.—What causes one of my nostrils to be clogged up at night, while during the day the nose seems perfectly clear?

A—This condition may be due to a polyp or a deflected septum. Have a nose specialist advise you after he has made a careful examination.

K. K. Q.—Of just what use are tonsils?

A—The function of the tonsils is not exactly known. They are a part of the glandular system and undoubtedly have some useful work to perform.

Prayer For Darrow Voiced By Baptists

(Associated Press)

MANDEVILLE, La., July 22—Prayers for the conversion to Christianity of Clarence Darrow, defense attorney in the Scopes trial, which ended yesterday in Tennessee, were offered last night at the state assembly of the Baptist Young People's Union here.

The prayers were given at the suggestion of E. D. Solomon, state secretary of the organization and hope was expressed that Darrow might be won, as St. Paul was won.

At the conclusion, a chorus of "amen's" rang out.

BRITISH STRIKE LOOMS

Church Depends On Activities Of Laity

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK.—A severe arraignment of the laity of the Episcopal church for indifference to their religious obligations is contained in a report, made public today, of the commission on increased Lay Activities, which will be submitted to the Episcopal Triennial General Convention at New Orleans October 7 to 23. The report is signed by Burton Mansfield, corporation lawyer of New Haven; John Stewart Bryan, editor of the Richmond (Va.) News Leader; Ira W. Stratton, former mayor of Readin, Pa., and Willard Warner, prominent church man of Chattanooga.

Making the fullest use of all of the timber cut will go a long way towards saving our forests," Mr. Bunker states. Lumber manufacturers have realized this very clearly and lately have succeeded in converting the public to the use of material which but a short time ago was burned as trash.

"Among the resulting products of this conservation program is short and odd length flooring. In lumber operations the aim is to cut logs so that they will saw into boards of even lengths. However, a certain excess length is necessary to each log to allow for unavoidable rough handling and trimming. This, together with the cutting out of defects, results in a considerable amount of short remnants often comprising very good material.

"How to utilize these odd pieces was a problem. End-matched flooring became one of the solutions. The public was accustomed to the ordinary style one edge, which a tongue or ridge on the flooring with a groove planed into the adjoining piece closely fitted. Thus each piece of flooring had a groove on one side and a tongue on the other. By using even lengths, the ends of the pieces could be made to meet over regularly spaced floor supports, of course, would meet between the supports and the construction would not be as strong. The lumbermen, however, devised a system of tongues and grooves at the ends of the pieces as well as on the sides.

"Without the enlistment of the active enthusiasm, without the release of the spiritual zeal, and without the employment of the missionary impulses of the laity, the church must inexorably live a maimed and halting life."

The committee points to the fact that with the exception of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the Episcopal church has notably neglected the field of lay activity.

"There can be no denial," says the report, "first, that the Episcopal church has not actively and intensively gone about the task of organizing and inspiring and applying the energies of its laymen, as a whole, for the work of the church as a whole, and, second, that both by reason of history and by unanswerable examples of other communions a vast source of beneficial energy has been neglected alike for the enrichment of the spiritual life of the individual layman that serves, and of the corporate church that is so supported."

The report cites action by various provinces and dioceses looking to organized work among the laity and recommends to the General Convention the consideration of a number of suggestions which it outlines whereby the interest of the laity in the work of the church may be promoted.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mosley has returned from a visit to her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Sherrod in Courtland, Ala.

ELIMINATION OF WASTE IS ONE WAY OF CONSERVING TIMBER

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 22.—The elimination of waste in the manufacture of lumber and in the building operations of the country is pointed out by Page S. Bunker, State Forester as a means of conserving our timber supply. The use of the smaller pieces of lumber that are generally consigned to the scrap heap is one way by which this elimination may be accomplished, he says. The end-matching of short and odd lengths of flooring is cited as a conspicuous example of what may be accomplished in this work.

"Making the fullest use of all of the timber cut will go a long way towards saving our forests," Mr. Bunker states. Lumber manufacturers have realized this very clearly and lately have succeeded in converting the public to the use of material which but a short time ago was burned as trash."

Hartselle News

HARTSELLE COMMUNITY

CLUB ACTIVE

Since the organization of the Hartselle Community Club, two distinct accomplishments are to their credit. The first is the fostering of the Hartselle fair which will be held here early in next October. The next is the organization of a fishing club of fifty members, and the buying of a tract of land containing about forty acres upon which they will make a fish pond after building a dam across Shoal Creek. It is planned to make this one of the finest fishing preserves in this section. Upon completion of the dam, the waters of the lake, (named Lake Ashworth) will be stocked with native brook and trout, and application has already been made for fish from the government hatcheries.

The club has under consideration at this time a system of water works for the town. It is pointed out that with plenty available water supply, it would be possible to attract small industries to locate at this point.

PROF. DOWLING OF CULLMAN TALKS AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Prof. Dowling of Cullman prominent layman and educator of that city in the absence of the pastor, Rev. R. W. Anderson made a splendid address at the First Methodist church last Sunday morning. The basis of his remarks was taken from the book of Revelations, talking on the narrative of the twelve gates in the chapter read, which he divided into four groups and drew beautiful pictures, the whole being a summary of the accomplishments of past ages, and the final outcome of those who labored in the four divisions mentioned. He was listened to with fine attention throughout.

MEETING TO CONTINUE THROUGH THE WEEK AT FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Rev. Woods, pastor of the First Christian church of Rome Ga. who for the past week has been conducting a series of evangelistic services at the First Christian church, this city, will continue the services through this week, this announcement being made just prior to the sermon Sunday night.

Mrs. Dan Wilkinson of New Orleans, La., left Sunday for Philadelphia after spending a week with P. Mittweide and family.

A large number of Hartselle citizens attended the Davis trial at Decatur last Monday and Tuesday, great interest in the trial has been noticed from the very beginning. Young Howell lived here, and had many friends throughout this section.

The finest rain in this section since the present crop was started began falling in this section last Tuesday morning early and continued throughout the day. Every indication is that it is general over the county, and brings to this section the first real season in three months. Crops with the exception of a few scattering communities are good, and the rain now guarantees a fine corn crop, and late hay. Everybody is happy, and all efforts now will be to plant everything that can mature between now and frost.

AMUSEMENTS

FILM, NOW CAUSING A FUREUR IN ADJACENT CITIES COMING HERE

"Darwin Was Right" is heralded by critics as season's fastest laugh-fest.

STORY IS BIG NOVELTY

Reveals the Adventures of Man, Maids and Monkeys as Being Amazingly Similar

Unusual interest is being evinced in the coming of the widely discussed William Fox screen production, "Darwin Was Right," which is booked for one day engagement at the Princess Theatre tomorrow. Few pictures have caused as much of a mirthful furor in various cities as this one has, according to reports, and, because the plot of the photoplay is based on the many moot questions stirred up by the Darwinian theory, it is receiving attention even in the editorial columns of some newspapers.

The story revolves around the quest of three old men for the elixir of youth and it is giving a highly diverting twist when the trio falls victims to kidnappers as soon as they find what they are after. In the course of events it is shown that the line of demarcation between man and monkey is not so very sharp of distinguishing, but this is all unfolded in the midst of a wealth of hilarious humor, and the result is, everybody is said to get a great "kick" out of it.

In the cast are such favorites as George O'Hara, Nell Brantley, Dan Mason, Lon Poof, Bud Jamison and Stanley Blystone who are supported in a most novel fashion by three exceedingly clever chimpanzees. Lewis Seiler directed the picture and he is given credit for making it a classic in film comedy construction.

The action is described as "so fast that there is no time allowed for any recovery from laughter," and yet, it is claimed it sends people away pondering the subject of the origin of man most seriously since it focuses attention on so many angles of the argument pro and con which has been arresting the sober thought of mortals these many years.
